

INSTRUCTIONS: All questions have only one correct answer.

1. All of the following are appropriate questions to ask when trying to learn about a patient's culture, except:

1. How are people in your culture informed about a serious illness?
2. How do people cope, what sources of strength do they turn to?
3. Where do people prefer to die?
4. Why do people in your culture not accept Western bioethical principles?

2. Which one of the following is typical in a non-Western family system?

1. Strong belief in patient autonomy
2. Strong belief that the patient has final decision-making ability
3. Strong belief that families have a duty to assist ill relatives

Strong belief that patients should not be sheltered from distressing information

3. When working with a family that requests non-disclosure to an ill relative, the first step is to:

1. offer a statement of respect
2. contact risk management
3. contact an ethics committee for advice
4. inform family of the principle of patient autonomy

4. The FIFE interview represents all the following domains, except:

1. Evaluation
2. Feelings
3. Functioning
4. Ideas

5. Which one of the following comes closest to the definition of the term "culture":

1. A person's religion that provides a framework for understanding life and death
2. A person's ethnic background that provides rules for how to behave in society
3. A set of guidelines arising from one's ethnicity, religion, social roles and family
4. A set of guidelines issued by a family that tell a person how to believe in God